

relationship, the Old Testament, treaty, covenant relationship, Grand Rapids, Stephen G. Dempster, ancient Near Eastern, Calvin Theological Journal, the divine image, Evangelical Theological Society, parties, the image of God, Covenant and Creation, creation narrative, image of God, the creation, Oliver O'Donovan, G. Johannes Botterweck, David A. Sterchi, Does Genesis, Baruch A. Levine, G. Bartholomew, J. Wenham, J. Niehaus, Helmer Ringgren, American Oriental Society, Hebrew Bible, Oxford University, Garden of Eden, Thomas Nelson, God rules, Richard S. Hess, Timothy J. Hallett, J. Dumbrell, Southern Baptist Theological Seminary, Testament Interpretation, William J. Dumbrell, the covenant, generations of Adam, John H. Stek, biblical theology, biblical covenants, Covenant Theology, Craig Bartholomew, Kenneth A. Mathews, Israel, Jesus Christ, the covenant with Noah, Trinity International University Kingdom Through Covenant: Humanity as the Divine Image¹