Financial Literacy Improvement Among Women in Developing Nations: A Case for Zimbabwe

Zimbabwe, financial literacy, financial products, RII, Financial support, financial inclusion, financial awareness, methods, Developing Nations, financial sector, financial issue, investment decision, Empowerment programs, Wellington G. Bonga, financial management, financial literacy levels, financial markets, impact levels, multi-faceted approach, Klapper Leora, identified method, financial education, Financial institutions, development status, National Financial Inclusion Strategy, financial transactions, financial services, financial intermediation, financial sector development, adult population, literacy rates, relative importance, Van Oudheusden Peter, Reserve Bank of Zimbabwe, financial literacy improvement, Bonga